Dear colleagues,

First of all, it is my honour to welcome you to the 18th EPAC/EACN Annual Professional Conference and General Assembly, taking place in Rust, Austria, from 22 to 24 October 2018 under the heading “Multiple challenges require sustainable and interactive solutions”. This year’s conference, hosted by the Austrian Federal Bureau of Anti-Corruption (BAK), will not only provide a useful opportunity to network but also to continue and enhance the important discussions among our members. I look forward to our constructive exchanges and would like to take this opportunity to provide you with the 14th edition of the EPAC/EACN Contact Catalogue: it assembles facts and figures on our membership based on the input we have received throughout the year. You can also find the latest version of the Contact Catalogue and further information on our website www.epac-eacn.org.

While the Annual Professional Conference is the highlight in our networks’ events calendar, we have all contributed to maintaining and deepening our networks as well as made an effort to facilitate a direct, sustainable exchange of information and experiences over the course of this past year in multiple event formats.

The fruitful and interesting dialogues during the two Board Meetings in Tallinn and Vienna ensured the further strategic planning and coherent future orientation of EPAC/EACN. At the second board meeting in May, the discussions particularly focused on the progress made by the EPAC/EACN Working Groups and on new memberships. The Board received several new membership requests, which outlines the strong importance of and high interest in the work of our networks. The Working Group with the working title „How can POB organisations monitor the authorities of police forces in respect of the balance between collective security and individual rights during mass meetings/events” held its first meeting in April. The Working Group “Analysis of big data, related legal aspects and the use of data” convened for its second meeting in March.

All of these meetings brought new insights and broadened our perspectives. I know for a fact that advancing our networks’ goals and mission would not be possible without the effort of each of our members. Therefore, I would like to thank every participant for their contribution to and continued support of our networks.

Vienna, September 2018

Andreas Wieselthaler
President of EPAC/EACN
General Information

The European Partners against Corruption (EPAC) and European contact-point network against corruption (EACN) are independent forums for anti-corruption and police oversight practitioners. While EPAC was initiated in 2001 and subsequently established in 2004, EACN grew out of EU Council Decision 2008/852/JHA of October 2008 as a more formal network based on EPAC’s preexisting structures. Having started out as a small unconventional forum, today EPAC brings together more than 70 anti-corruption authorities and police oversight bodies from Council of Europe and European Union Member States. EACN comprises a total of more than 50 anti-corruption authorities from EU Member States. The European Anti-Fraud Office (OLAF) is a member of both networks, while the European Commission, Europol and Eurojust are fully associated with the activities of EACN.

Together, EPAC and EACN provide a platform for practitioners to exchange expertise and information, assist each other, and cooperate across national borders, both on a practical and professional level. In line with their respective constitutions, EPAC and EACN also advocate international legal instruments and offer assistance to other bodies for establishing transparent, efficient mechanisms. Their overall goal is to contribute to police oversight and the global fight against corruption through dialogue and joint efforts.

The Contact Catalogue

The EPAC/EACN Contact Catalogue 2018 provides an overview of all police oversight bodies and anti-corruption authorities which make up EPAC and EACN. It outlines essential information about them, such as their contact details, powers, competences, and structures.

All information and descriptions contained were provided by the anti-corruption authorities and police oversight bodies on a voluntary basis.

The Contact Catalogue also presents the EPAC and EACN constitutions and the annual declarations jointly adopted by them, providing background information on the history, mandate and accomplishments of the networks.

SELF-DESCRIPTIONS
The Internal Control Service (ICS) is a public administration institution and a separate structure of the MoI, directly subordinate to the Minister of Interior. The mission of the ICS is to guarantee an accountable, democratic and transparent service to the community, in compliance with the effective legislation and required standards. The structure of the ICS is unique and directed by the General Director. The ICS is organized into departments and directorates at the central level and directorates and sectors at local level.

The personnel of the ICS are divided into four categories:
- Investigative personnel with Judicial Police attributes
- Inspecting personnel
- Support personnel
- Part-time contractors

The scope of activity of the ICS is:
- The prevention, detection, documentation and preliminary investigation into the criminal offences perpetrated by the employees of the State Police, regardless of their position and rank, for the criminal offenses committed during the performance and because of the duty.
- The inspection of the performance of all State Police structures on compliance with the effective legislation and required standards, for the purpose of guaranteeing their accountability, effectiveness, and the efficiency.

To fulfill their duties, ICS investigative personnel have the right and responsibility to:
- Collect, administer and keep data on the prevention, detection and investigation of criminal offenses committed by employees of the State Police, regardless of their position and rank, utilizing every lawful source of information.
- Use of special measures for data collection such as secret interception of telecommunications, taking pictures, filming and audio/video recording, in compliance with the respective legislation.
- Investigate violations according to the Criminal Procedure Code.
- Identify, track and seize crime proceeds according to law at 10002 (06.10.2008) “for Internal Control Service, at the Ministry of Interior”. The ICS shall request statements from employees of the State Police on external activities, secondary employment, investments, assets and gifts or privileges, which may give rise to a conflict of interest due to their position as public servants.

Also, the ICS investigative personnel have the right to perform integrity tests of State Police employees used to verify the ethics and integrity of a police employee and estimate their vulnerability for corruption.

To fulfill their duties, ICS inspecting personnel perform two types of inspections:
- “Ordinary inspections”, which entail the evaluation of the effectiveness and efficiency of the State Police structures.
- “Extraordinary inspections”, which entail the evaluation of the structure or department of the State Police due to an unexpected situation or event.

The ICS has and manages its own budget, which is a separate line item in the budget of the Ministry. The General Director of the ICS is responsible for the effective and efficient management of the approved budget, which is subject to auditing. The most important item of this budget is a separate fund used for the benefit of ICS’ informative and criminal procedural activity.

The actions of the ICS are supervised by a defined prosecutor from the Office of the General Prosecutor, with whom they consult in every case of investigation, or flagrancy arrest, in order to investigate in conformity with the law.

The Information Complaints Office is located near the ICS headquarters. Here citizens can file reports about police officers’ infringements of the law, as well as reports concerning corruptive acts and the infringement of the Police Code of Ethics. In compliance with their duties, employees of the ICS shall respect the human rights and fundamental freedoms stipulated by law, and contribute to their fulfillment.
14. acts punishable pursuant to the StGB and supplementary laws, provided that they are related to the offences 1 to 13 and have to be prosecuted by the BAK by written order of a court or a public prosecutor's office.
15. acts punishable pursuant to the StGB and supplementary laws that are committed by public employees of the Federal Ministry of the Interior, provided that they have to be prosecuted by the BAK by written order of a court or a public prosecutor's office.

International Cooperation

The Federal Bureau of Anti-Corruption is responsible for cooperation in investigations within the framework of international police cooperation and administrative assistance in the cases referred to above. Furthermore, the Bureau is responsible for cooperation with foreign authorities and international institutions in the field of prevention of and fight against corruption in general, and, in particular, exchange of experience in this area.

Prevention

The BAK shall analyse corruption phenomena, gather information on preventing and combating them and develop appropriate preventive measures. In this context, the BAK is responsible for strengthening the willingness and abilities of individuals as well as territorial communities or authorities to obtain knowledge about measures for the prevention of corruption and promotion of integrity and, accordingly, to develop an awareness of this issue.

Public Prosecutor's Office for Combatting Economic Crimes and Corruption (WKSStA)

Wirtschafts- und Korruptionsstaatsanwaltschaft

The Central Public Prosecutor’s Office for Combatting Economic Crimes and Corruption (WKSStA) was established in 2011 as the successor of the Public Prosecutor's Office for Combatting Corruption, which was installed in 2009. Since then its jurisdiction has been extended. The main tasks are prosecuting corruption and major and complex economic crimes with damages exceeding € 5 Mio as well as corresponding money laundering. Furthermore WKSStA is in charge of mutual legal assistance in connection with such criminal acts. The WKSStA is responsible for monitoring its whistle-blowing system for reports of anonymous informers.

Its staff consists of well-trained and experienced public prosecutors who are supported by experts in the field of auditing, tax accountancy, banking and finance as well as information technology.

The WKSStA works closely together with the Federal Bureau of Anti-Corruption (BAK) when investigating bribery cases and with the Federal Criminal Police Office (BKA) during the investigation of economic crimes.

The WKSStA's jurisdiction extends to the whole federal territory of the Republic of Austria.

BELGIUM

Federal Judicial Police

DGJ/DJF/OCRC-CDBC

In Belgium, the Central Office against Corruption (OCRC – Office Central pour la Répression de la Corruption) is the competent service dealing with the fight against corruption and other related offences, such as the misappropriation of public funds, conflicts of interest and embezzlement committed by persons who hold a public office. The service also tackles fraud with public contracts and fraud with government grants.

The Central Office against Corruption is a “central” service, which is part of the Directorate Economic and Financial Crime (ECOFIN) of the Belgian Federal Judicial Police, and which can carry out investigations on the entire Belgian territory. Next to this central service, the different judicial police services in the districts have ECOFIN units that also carry out investigations regarding corruption. The central service and the services in the districts often co-operate in certain investigations. It should be noted that the OCRC’s priority mission is carrying out particularly complex investigations requiring a very high level of expertise or being of a very delicate nature.

Historically speaking, the origins of the OCRC remount to the former Comité Supérieur de Contrôle (CSC – Higher Supervisory Committee), which had to carry out judicial inquiries that are now assigned to the OCRC. Besides its judicial powers, the CSC also had administrative powers, unlike the OCRC today. In 1998, the investigators of the CSC first joined the ranks of the Judicial Police before being integrated in the new Federal Police following the 2001 police reform. Moreover, other police officers coming from various horizons have since joined the ranks of the OCRC. The office has about 60 investigators.

It should also be noted that some of the OCRC’s corruption dossiers concern European officials, as the European institutions are located on Belgian territory. These dossiers are investigated in co-operation with the European Anti-Fraud Office (OLAF), which has its seat in Brussels.

General Inspectorate of the Federal and Local Police (AIG)

The core competence is as follows:

Inspection service:

- Inspection of the functioning of the federal and local police
- Application of legislation, regulations, orders, norms, standards
- Efficiency and effectiveness of police forces
- External audits regarding the police forces
- Investigations:
  - Following complaints

Mediation:

- Re-establishment of trust when a disagreement emerges under the following conditions:
  - no offence
  - consent of all parties
If the outcome is favourable, no other disciplinary or administrative proceeding will follow

Statutory Matters:

- Evaluation Committees (for all kind of police chiefs)
- Disciplinary matters (disciplinary council – expert)
- Council of appeal supervising evaluation

Means of investigation:

- General and permanent right to perform inspections
- Possibility of hearing members of police forces and entering the facilities where and when police officers are performing their duties
- Right to call members of police forces to hearings
- To establish mandatory reply deadlines
- To be informed of any action taken upon its recommendation

The Inspectorate is working on the request of judicial or administrative authorities. It is also working on the request of the Federal Police Council or the General Commissioner of the Federal Police as well as on the request of the police chief of the local police. The Inspectorate is legally independent of other police forces, has its own budget and is working at an independent location.

The Inspection générale de la Police Fédérale et de la Police Locale was set up in 2001 and at the moment it has a staff of 95 persons.

Standing Police Monitoring Committee (S.P.M.C.)

The law of 18 July 1991 established comprehensive external supervision and monitoring of police forces in Belgium via a neutral and totally independent institution answerable to Parliament: the Standing Police Monitoring Committee (Committee P). Committee P is directly answerable to Parliament, on behalf of which it provides indirect and ongoing monitoring of police bodies that are answerable to the executive authority.

Committee P is responsible for the external monitoring of all police forces, their officers, and officials with police powers. The police forces and officials subject to the scrutiny of Committee P are:

1. the federal and local police;
2. certain administrative bodies or departments run by public authorities or bodies serving the public interest whose members are agents for, or officers in, the judicial police force: they are mainly bodies with police powers, such as the Customs & Excise Department;
3. certain persons individually authorized to investigate and establish violations of the law.
Committee P conducts inquiries into:

1. police activities and methods;
2. internal police guidelines and regulations;
3. any documents governing the conduct of members of police forces, except guidelines on investigative policy and the prosecution of criminal offences, and guidelines on administrative police policy;
4. the activities and methods of the General Inspectorate of the Federal and Local Police.

Under the organic law, Committee P’s actions follow three underlying principles:
1. protecting the fundamental rights conferred upon citizens by the Constitution and the law;
2. coordinating police forces;
3. ensuring that police forces operate efficiently in the broadest sense.

So Committee P seeks to ensure that, in terms of efficiency and respect for civil liberties and human rights, the actions of police forces and officials complement each other and those of any other involved.

In order to achieve this threefold goal, Committee P’s key objective is to examine how police forces work and, if possible, to pinpoint any imperfections or failings within the system, structures or methods or in connection with police action, so that proposals may be made with a view to remedial measures. Accordingly, Committee P works to develop and present a vision of all aspects of the way in which the police operates and the way in which administrations, forces, officials and other individuals with police powers carry out their duties. In this context, it enjoys a privileged position as an overall watchdog body of the way in which the Belgian police system operates and of how the laws governing the police function and the integrated police force are implemented.

One of Committee P’s main missions is to ascertain the degree to which political leaders could or should improve the way in which the police forces for which they are responsible function. It also examines whether any changes should be made to the legislation applicable to the police forces in question. The main aim in conducting such checks is not to highlight individual sanctionable incidents in police forces in general or in any one particular police force. The special supervision and monitoring activities carried out by Committee P go beyond accident reports and issuing opinions and recommendations; they also involve monitoring measures taken and implementation of recommendations or opinions issued.

Committee P comprises a standing committee of five members and is assisted in its tasks by the Investigation Department. The Investigation Department operates under the authority of the Standing Committee, which assigns investigations to it (inspection inquiries) and receives reports on all investigations conducted. The Investigation Department does not merely function as a department of Committee P; it is also a specialized police department assigned to conduct investigations concerning members of police forces.

The rise in the number of complaints and reports of police misconduct in recent years is significant.

Standing Committee to create a special complaint handling section. This unit prepares the case files and performs an initial analysis on the Committee’s behalf.

To enable Committee P to perform its overall monitoring tasks in the same way as police forces implement the tasks required of them under the police function, the legislature offers Committee P a wide variety of ways in which to gain a comprehensive overall picture of the problems likely to arise within police forces. Accordingly, Committee P has at its disposal various internal and external instruments.

Different intelligence sources enable Committee P to access information on indicators of possible substandard performance in police forces. These may be police corps, disciplinary authorities, the General Inspectorate of the Federal and Local Police, the judicial authorities, or even individual officials with police powers themselves. 1

Committee P uses the information it collects in these ways to draw up its position and decisions, and to launch inspection and other inquiries, which are the source of the majority of its conclusions and recommendations.

1 There are several hundred officials in various ministries with police powers to help them discharge their duties in sectors as diverse as the economy, employment and labour, agriculture, the environment, public health, social affairs and public works.

Commission for Anti-Corruption and Illegal Assets Forfeiture

In Bulgaria the Asset Recovery System has a relatively short history in terms of operational asset recovery. The original: “Law of Divestment in Favour of the State of Property Acquired from Criminal Activity” was adopted in 2005 (the CEPACA law) while the Commission for Establishing of Property Acquired from Criminal Activity (CEPACA) was defined as the competent state authority for asset recovery.

A second new “Law on Forfeiture in Favour of the State of Illegally Acquired Assets” followed in early May 2012, taking effect in November 2012 (hereafter – the CIAF law), which abolished CEPACA and created the CIAF (Commission for Illegal Assets Forfeiture) as a full-fledged successor. Both CEPACA and CIAF laws are still functional with regards to legal cases launched under these laws until they are closed.

The 2012 Forfeiture in Favour of the State of Illegally Acquired Assets Act was repealed in the beginning of 2018 and the new legislation was adopted – the Law for Combating Corruption and Illegal Assets Forfeiture establishing the Commission for Anti-Corruption and Illegal Assets Forfeiture (CACAIF). This is currently the acting law in the country. The two pieces of legislation have identical scope of application and nature. Under both the asset forfeiture is based only on civil court judgement (civil forfeiture), also known as non-conviction based confiscation.

The Commission for Anti-Corruption and Illegal Assets Forfeiture (CACAIF) is created on the basis of the Commission for Illegal Assets Forfeiture (CIAF), which is joined by the Commission for Prevention and Identification of Conflict of Interests, the Centre for Prevention and Countering of Corruption and Organized Crime at the Council of Ministers, the relevant unit of the Court of Auditors, related to the activity of the repealed Publicity of Property Occupying High Public and Other Positions Act and the relevant specialized directorate of the State Agency for National Security, related to combating corruption among persons occupying high public positions. The Commission for Anti-Corruption and Illegal Assets Forfeiture as an independent, specialized, permanently acting state body has competence and powers to conduct activities for prevention of corruption - collect, analyse and verify information on or in connection with information about acts of corruption, conducted by senior public officials; to verify and analyse the declarations of property and interests of senior public officials; to identify conflict of interest of persons occupying senior public positions; to check up signals on incompatibility declarations of senior public officials and to initiate proceedings for identifying, seizing and forfeiting of illegally acquired assets and other powers, including the management of the seized assets.

The Commission for Anti-Corruption and Illegal Assets Forfeiture shall exchange information with the competent authorities of other States and with international organisations on the basis of international instruments and international treaties. The CACAIF is a Member of CARIN Network, ARO Platform and Europol SEEN channel.

The Commission maintains close contacts and cooperation with numerous international organisations and networks: Interpol, Europol, CARIN, ARINSA, RRAG, Eurojust, Egmont Group, International Criminal Court, UN Office on Drugs and Crime, OLAF, etc.

The NPB steers police units’ activities also through operative priorities and, administrative regulations and instructions covering all policing. It exercises legality control i.e. by inspecting police units and by handling minor complaints about staff conduct. It has established a national network for training and awareness-raising of officers in charge of detection and investigation of corruption offences.

Central Service for the Prevention of Corruption (SCPC)

The growing awareness in the international community of the harm done by corruption in all states, irrespective of their level of development, and of the total cost of this phenomenon, has led, over the last fifteen or so years, to a shared reaction aimed not only at preventing, but also combating corruption. For this reason, conventions were signed in order to fight corruption (OECD, Council of Europe, UN, etc.)

France has had a unique instrument available to it since its creation in 1993: the SCPC (the Central Service for the Prevention of Corruption). This is an interministerial body headed by a member of the judiciary and attached to the Minister of Justice. Its functions are not investigative (it has no powers of enquiry), but involve the centralisation and analysis of information in order to arrive at an overview of corruption as a phenomenon in France, with the accompanying power to transmit to French public prosecutors, detailed information that has been uncovered for the purposes of possible criminal prosecution.

Matters may be laid before it by various public authorities (governmental, administrative or judicial) for consultation or its opinion on a given situation or enquiry in progress. It conducts programmes for the raising of awareness and training not only for the high-level Grandes Écoles and universities, but also for companies and professional organisations. In addition, the international action of the SCPC has increasingly evolved over the years both bilaterally, at the request of states wishing to benefit from France’s expertise and support in implementing internal anti-corruption policies, and multilaterally, with SCPC participation in the work done by GRECO under the auspices of the Council of Europe, and by UNODC, OECD and the G20 in various working groups. The SCPC participates in several international programs to develop and enhance anticorruption institutions and policies, and in particular within twinning programs of the European Union, such as Romania (2006), Bulgaria (2009-2010) and Croatia (2010-2011).

In conclusion, the French SCPC, with its large experience with topics in anticorruption fields, and its international targets, is available to provide expertise and assistance to requesting States in order to enhance the effectiveness of systems for preventing and combating corruption.

Federal Criminal Police Office

BKA-Bundeskriminalamt

The Bundeskriminalamt (BKA) is a subordinate agency to the Federal Ministry of the Interior. The BKA works on the basis of a clear legal mandate, which is defined in the German Constitution and in the “BKA Law” (Law on the Bundeskriminalamt and the Co-operation between Federal and State Authorities in Criminal Police Matters).

The BKA is an essential cornerstone in a comprehensive system of crime control and works as a partner with the police forces of the Federation and of the individual German states. According to the German Constitution, for the most part police jurisdiction in Germany lies with the 16 German states. However, the diversity resulting from the principle of federalism should not lead to uncoordinated activity that creates obstacles for police work.

To co-ordinate crime suppression at national and international level, the BKA was established as the central office for police information and communications as well as for the German CID.

By acting as the information and communication centre of the German police, the BKA provides support to the police forces of the federation and of the states in connection with the prevention and prosecution of crimes that involve more than one German state and that are of international significance or otherwise of considerable significance.

The BKA also helps the police forces in the German states to avoid duplication of effort. A number of centralised systems and facilities for the German police are maintained at the Bundeskriminalamt. The Bundeskriminalamt has also been assigned the task of promoting police co-operation in Europe and throughout the world as a legal mandate.

All official communications between the German police and other countries are routed through the Bundeskriminalamt. This makes it possible to compile important information and ensure uniform application of legal provisions. The BKA acts as the national central office for Interpol, Europol and the Schengen Information System.

The unit SO 31 was set up in 1996. It is in the field of corruption the national centre of the Federal Republic of Germany vis-à-vis the international criminal police organisation. Furthermore, SO 31 is analysing, collecting and controlling information in the field of corruption.

The unit RI does provide internal reviews and audits, inspections of the BKA-Liaison Offices abroad and special measures and trainings to prevent internal corruption. The section reports to the President of the BKA and gives recommendations in all matters of compliance and integrity to the staff off the BKA.

Interdisciplinary Department for Corruption and Environmental Crime - Department 15

The department was set up in April 2004 as an interdisciplinary unit to combat corruption and environmental crime. The unit’s permanent staff consists of 24 police detectives and 2 academic specialists in the field of economy. However, the judgement of offences in the area of corruption and the environment often requires the support of additional specialists. Such an interdisciplinary approach is ensured by cooperation which goes beyond the departments.

All the agencies, organizations and enterprises of the Federal State are committed to giving their support for individual investigations by making their specialist staff available for limited periods. For instance, it is mainly staff from the state tax and revenue investigation units, auditing inspection units, environmental agencies, price control units, anti-trust agencies and particular engineers whose specialist knowledge can be relied on whenever it is necessary.

The unit itself mainly carries out preliminary investigation proceedings against extensive and complex networks of corruption. Most of these have to be classified as organized economic crime. Further main tasks include consultancy and support for other (police) authorities, participation in policy-making and advisory bodies, further development of police combating strategies and of concepts for investigation, as well as the centralized reception of overt and anonymous reports about corruption via a “corruption hotline” and a contact office. Moreover, D.I.E. is responsible for combating corruption in the private sector too. There is a fruitful cooperation between D.I.E. and the chamber of commerce and many compliance offices of private companies. Intensive contacts to NGOs like Transparency International as well as to other anti-corruption units all over Europe and the exchange of experiences with other world cities like New York City, Hong Kong, Sydney guarantee the permanent questioning of the own situation and the positive development of the strategic and tactical measures of D.I.E. in the fight against corruption.

GERMANY

Department of Internal Investigation

(Dezernat Interne Ermittlungen)

The Department for Internal Investigations (D.I.E.) of the Free and Hanseatic City of Hamburg has a wide experience concerning the fight against corruption. D.I.E. is not constrained by directives of the police although its staff – currently 58 persons – are predominantly detectives. In Germany, D.I.E. is in the exceptional position to be directly tied to the privy council of the Ministry of the Interior of Hamburg. It is therefore largely independent from hierarchic exertion of influence while conducting its duties and responsibilities and is able to implement immediately e.g. mechanisms to combat corruption in all public authorities of Hamburg.

D.I.E. is responsible for the penal prosecution of corruption and criminal acts of police officers on duty as well as of coordinating and strategically adjusting prevention of corruption for the entire administration of Hamburg.

A Centre of Consulting is tied to the D.I.E. It is a major instrument for prevention of corruption and corresponding training activities in Hamburg. The Centre of Consulting sensitisises office holders to problems of corruption and offers a call service for all citizens where they can give clues and get advice concerning special questions to the relevant matters. Besides, D.I.E. is supported by a tax investigator and disposes of an own, well equipped operative unit for undercover investigations.

In addition to his main function the Head of D.I.E. is chairman of the Hamburg Conference Against Corruption (Antikorruptionskonferenz (AKK)). AKK elaborates concepts for the prevention of corruption in all public authorities and decides upon its implementation. The Chair of the Hamburg AKK directly reports to the government of the Federal State of Hamburg.

The Commission has three members, one of whom is designated as the chairperson. Notwithstanding this, any one Commissioner can by agreement exercise the functions of the Commission.

GSOC deals with complaints from members of the public who believe that they may have been mistreated by a member of the Garda Síochána (Irish police service) or have been a witness to such behaviour. GSOC’s objectives are:

- To establish a system for dealing with complaints against the Garda Síochána that is efficient, effective and fair to all concerned, and

In addition to dealing with complaints from members of the public, GSOC may issue a report on a practice, policy or procedure of the Garda Síochána for the purpose of preventing complaints.

In cases involving the death of, or serious harm to, an individual as a result of Garda operations or as a result of the conduct of a member of the Garda Síochána the Garda Ombudsman will always carry out an investigation.

GSOC employs a team of Case Officers to deal with the administration of the complaints as they are received. These officers may recommend an appropriate course of investigation. They may also, with the agreement of both parties concerned, manage the informal resolution or mediation process.

GSOC also employs its own investigators for the investigation of serious complaints including all those alleging offences of a criminal nature. Less serious complaints may be referred back to the Garda Síochána for investigation under internal disciplinary regulations.

Central Anti-Corruption Bureau (CBA)

Centralne Biuro Antykorupcyjne

The Central Anti-Corruption Bureau (CBA) is a special service, created as a government administration office in order to
The main goal of the CBA is combating corruption where the public sector meets the private one. The CBA’s activity is based on four pillars:

1. operational and investigational activities,
2. control activities,
3. analytical activities,
4. anti-corruption prevention, including anti-corruption education of the society.

Within the first pillar, the CBA’s tasks comprise recognition, prevention and detection of offences against, among others, the activity of public institutions and local government, the administration of justice, financing of political parties, fiscal obligations as well as donation and subvention settlement.

In criminal investigation, the CBA officers are entitled to use police powers which may be supported by special measures, such as:
- operational control,
- undercover operations,
- technical surveillance.

The second pillar involves the control of the correctness and truthfulness of asset declarations or statements on conducting business activities by persons performing public functions as well as the detection and fight against acts of breaking the law within the scope of the decisions issued and accomplished within the scope of, among others, privatisation and commercialisation, financial support and award of public procurements as well as conducting business activities by persons performing public functions.

The third pillar covers the conduct of analytical activities concerning the phenomena falling within the scope of the CBA’s competence as well as presenting information on the above-mentioned activities to the Parliament of the Republic of Poland, President of the Republic of Poland and the Prime Minister. This involves the CBA’s activity within the “anti-corruption shield”, which was elaborated in the Chancellery of the Prime Minister. The main goal of the “shield” is prevention of irregularities in the privatisation of key enterprises and in public procurements. The activities within the scope of the anti-corruption shield are coordinated by the Chancellery of the Prime Minister.

Competent authorities and special services are involved in the implementation of the programme. Materials verified by the CBA are submitted to the Chancellery of the Prime Minister. Other services lodge them directly to the ministers in charge while the Chancellery of the Prime Minister is provided with the copies.

Since 2010, the Central Anti-Corruption Bureau has been paying special attention to corruption prevention and anti-corruption education.

To perform its functions within the above-mentioned activities, described in the fourth pillar, the CBA created a portal on anti-corruption education on the educational site (www.antiykorupcja.pl). It is a review of the corruption phenomena, aimed at the promotion of attitudes and behaviours favouring corruption prevention. The portal is an information source – beginning with domestic and international legal regulations and concluding with a wide choice of publications.

Inspectorate General of the Internal Administration (IGAI)

IGAI was created with the purpose of endowing the Ministry of Internal Administration (MAI) with the service of inspection and supervision, especially dedicated to the defence of citizens’ rights, focused on achieving better and quicker disciplinary justice in situations of greater social relevance.

Besides inspections, IGAI carries out supervision actions without previous notice to precints and units of police forces in order to verify the general conditions of operation and the respect for law and the applicable procedures, especially the conditions of temporary detention and treatment of detainees.

IGAI probes the complaints submitted by citizens and analyses all situations brought to its attention by whatever means if there is a suspicion of the breach of law or of behaviour that is detrimental to the citizens’ fundamental rights. In more serious cases, such as bodily harm or death of citizens, IGAI directly launches the inquiries and disciplinary procedures and suggests individual sanctions to the Minister.

IGAI is also competent to make studies, and when facing the existence of systematic flaws, IGAI presents proposals and recommendations for the upgrading of units and department services.

Overall, IGAI is responsible for ensuring respect for the law with a view to the proper operation of the services, the protection of citizens’ rights and their legitimate interests, as well as the safeguarding of public interest and the redress of legality. In a way, one might say that one of the fundamental activities of IGAI is consistent with the internal activity of the European Committee for Prevention of Torture – CPT.

Essentially, IGAI is a high level inspection service with oversight powers over all the departments and units that depend on or are supervised by the Ministry of Internal Administration (such as the Military Police, the Civil Security Police, Immigration and Border Control Service, the Civil Protection and Fire Department Service, Civil Governments) and the enterprises or entities involved in private security activities. Our department is not subordinate to any unit or department, and we only report to the Minister for Internal Administration (MAI).

Anti-Corruption General Directorate (AGD)

(Directia Generala Anticoruptie)
The Anti-Corruption General Directorate was established by Law No. 161/2005 on regulating certain measures for preventing and combating corruption within the Ministry of Administration and Interior (MoIAR) as the specialized body for preventing and combating corruption within this Ministry’s personnel.

The AGD is a central directorate, which, only from the administrative point of view, is directly subordinate to the Minister of Interior. As a judicial police, when carrying out investigations, the AGD officers are operationally coordinated by the prosecutor in charge. The double subordination ensures the independence and objective character of operative investigations and allows our directorate to carry out efficient prevention activities.

The AGD’s main duties cover the following:
- carrying out specific measures for investigating corruption offences committed by the MoIAR’s personnel;
- receiving citizens’ complaints/petitions;
- conducting judicial police activities according to the law;
- organizing and implementing integrity testing activities;
- carrying out prevention activities;
- drafting risk and strategic analyses and proposing corrective measures.

At the central level, the AGD is made up of two operational directorates (the Intelligence Directorate and the Investigation, Prevention and Public Relations Directorate) and several support units (Logistics, HR, Finance, Internal Inspection and others).

The Intelligence Directorate includes units for analyzing information and intelligence, an undercover investigators unit and an operational unit made up of three offices: Flagrante Delicto, Integrity Testing and Technical Assistance.

The second operational directorate has three main units: Prevention, Public Relations and Criminal Investigation. The latter is made up of two subunits specializing in acts of corruption committed by the Ministry’s staff within the field of public order, and by the personnel within the field of public administration. At the territorial level, the AGD has 15 Regional Services, to which 42 territorial-county offices are subordinate.

In order to make the AGD’s activities transparent, the Strategic Committee for Supporting the AGD was set up. The Strategic Committee is a consultative body headed by the Minister of Interior and Administrative Reform. It is made up of the state secretaries, heads of MoIAR’s units and the head of the National Police Corps.

This body has an important specific feature, i.e. it includes, as permanent attendees, representatives of 8 EU Member State embassies, as well as one representative of the European Commission, and, as full members, 8 relevant NGOs.

In order to enable the public to report acts of corruption within the MoIAR, a green line (TELVERDE - 0800.806.806) was set up on 31.10.2005 and is continually promoted.

Within the field of prevention, meetings between citizens and MoIAR personnel as well as conferences and debates are continually promoted. This body has an important specific feature, i.e. it includes, as permanent attendees, representatives of 8 EU Member State embassies, as well as one representative of the European Commission, and, as full members, 8 relevant NGOs.

According to the legal provisions, the General Directorate for Intelligence and Internal Protection (DGIPPI) is a consultative body headed by the Minister of Interior and Administrative Reform. It is made up of the state secretaries, heads of MoIAR’s units and the head of the National Police Corps.

This body has an important specific feature, i.e. it includes, as permanent attendees, representatives of 8 EU Member State embassies, as well as one representative of the European Commission, and, as full members, 8 relevant NGOs.

In order to enable the public to report acts of corruption within the MoIAR, a green line (TELVERDE - 0800.806.806) was set up on 31.10.2005 and is continually promoted.

National Anticorruption Directorate (DNA)

The DNA is an institution with legal personality within the framework of the Prosecutor’s Office attached to the High Court of Cassation (POHCC). It was set up in September 2002 on the basis of the Emergency Government Ordinance no. 43/2002, following the model of the Special Anticorruption Prosecutor’s Office in Spain.

The DNA Chief Prosecutor is the first deputy of the General Prosecutor of Romania. He is appointed by the President of Romania on the proposal of the Minister of Justice and following the advisory note of the Superior Council of Magistracy. At present, the DNA staff consists of 526 professionals (prosecutors, police officers, specialist and auxiliary personnel).

The law gives the DNA important features of independence: it is independent in its relationship with the courts, procuratorial offices and other public authorities, and has financial autonomy.

The DNA has nationwide jurisdiction and is divided into a central office located in Bucharest and 14 regional offices. Its prosecutors are entitled to investigate and prosecute offences as follows:
- Bribery – if the value of the bribe is over 10,000 Euros
- Offences similar to corruption – if the value of the damage caused is over 200,000 Euros
- Bribery offences and offences similar to corruption, regardless the value of the bribe or damage – when committed by persons with certain high level public positions (i.e. Members of Parliament, members of government, generals, magistrates, prefects, mayors, police officers, directors of national companies etc.)
- Offences against the financial interests of the European Communities – regardless the value of the damage
- Serious economic offences (abuse of office, bid rigging in public procurement, usurying of the public function) – if the damage caused is over 1,000,000 Euros

A feature specific to the DNA - as a body of the Prosecution Service specialized in fighting corruption - is its complex investigative teams. Thus, while conducting their investigations, the 129 DNA prosecutors are supported by 166 police officers and 53 specialists in economic/financial/banking/customs/IT fields. All of these police officers and specialists carry out their activities in the framework of complex operational teams under the direct leadership, supervision and control of the prosecutor. This enhances the efficiency and quality of the criminal investigations.

While carrying out its investigations, the DNA is entitled to receive information from state agencies with powers of control, intelligence services and police. They are obliged to provide the DNA with all available data and information regarding corruption offences that fall under its jurisdiction. The DNA prosecutors can also require some of the state agencies, according to their competence, to provide further assistance to their investigations.

Other investigative powers of the DNA are: the surveillance of bank accounts and other accounts, the surveillance, interception and tapping of telephone calls (following the authorization issued by the judge), access to IT systems (following the authorization issued by the judge when the action implies access to correspondence), and the right of access to scripts and banking, financial or accountant documents. Whenever needed for identifying or collecting evidence, the prosecutor can also ask for a search warrant.
The National Integrity Agency (A.N.I.) was established in May 2007, in order to provide integrity in exercising public functions and dignities, as well as for the prevention of institutional corruption.

A.N.I.’s mission, in its capacity of an autonomous administrative authority with operational independence, is to verify the assets acquired while exercising a public function, to identify any potential conflicts of interests and incompatibilities and to implement an efficient strategy for the prevention and fighting of the aforementioned.

Competences:
- ascertaining cases of incompatibilities and conflicts of interests;
- sanctioning the failure to submit the assets and interests disclosures within the legal term;
- identifying any significant differences between the acquired assets and the income achieved during the same period of time;
- notifying other authorities, if elements of tax or criminal legislation infringement are identified;
- carrying out prevention and awareness activities, by actively supporting the partnerships with other institutions or civil society environments.

Persons holding high and official positions (MPs, Ministers), elected officials, political appointees, magistrates, police officers, university rectors, civil servants, persons running for presidential, parliamentary or local elections, etc. are subjects to A.N.I.’s investigations and also have the obligation to submit assets and interests disclosures.

A.N.I. has access to all documents / records from public authorities or any other public or private persons (tax registers, personal ID databases, motor vehicle registers, real estate registers, F.I.U. databases, land registers, etc.). The Agency performs evaluation activities ex-officio or upon notification by any individual or legal entity. The assessment of wealth, conflicts of interests and incompatibilities are performed during the mandate of public dignities and within three years after its end.

The operative activity is conducted by the integrity inspectors through an informatics system of integrated management for assets and interests declarations (SIMIDAI). This system has a series of operational modules including the random allocation distribution module, intelligence data analysis, files workflow (creation, documents route monitoring, statuses), investigational check-lists, early warning, monitoring, audit, registry modules, etc.

In view of meeting institutional objectives, the Agency collaborates with both the civil society and with the national institutions and authorities, by means of a series of internal and external collaboration protocols.

Organizational Structure:
A.N.I.’s personnel consists of its President, Vice–President, Secretary General, integrity inspectors (operative personnel), public servants, and contractual personnel. The maximum number of positions within the agency is 200. The President and Vice–President are appointed by the Senate, for a 4 year mandate, which cannot be renewed, following a competition organized by the National Integrity Council (C.N.I.).

According to the law, the assessment of the quality of the Agency’s management is conducted on an annual basis, through an independent external audit.

The Public Portal of Assets and Interests Disclosures
It represents A.N.I.’s most important instrument in providing transparency regarding assets and interests disclosures. The Portal is constantly updated and provides the possibility of visualizing all assets and interests disclosures, as submitted and forwarded to the National Integrity Agency. The Portal benefits from a number of advanced search facilities (institution, function, locality, county, etc.). Around 350,000 assets and interests disclosures are submitted on an annual basis.

Prevention and Awareness
In addition to the operative activity, the agency also contributes to the establishment of some good practices at the level of the central and local public administration, by the accomplishment of a series of prevention and awareness programs, in partnership with the civil society organizations and with other independent anti–corruption experts.

The Serbian Anti-Corruption Agency (hereinafter referred to as: the ACA) is an autonomous and independent state authority with numerous preventive, control and oversight competencies.

The Law on the ACA entered into force on 4 November 2008 thus enabling the establishment of a new institution of the Republic of Serbia to fight corruption. The IGS was formally founded on 12 March 2001, the day of the adoption of the Police Code of Procedure for the IGS of the DPS. However, the actual process of setting up the Sector did not begin until June 2003, when the first Inspector General was named. The founding of the IGS of the DPS was one of the priority tasks within the Reform Programme of the MoI, which defined the control and surveillance function of the police as one of the key areas of the MoI’s work.

The IAS is an independent organizational unit of the MoI of the Republic of Serbia which began its work in 2006. According to the provisions of the Police Law (November 2005), it monitors the legality of work performed by MoI law enforcement officers, especially when they conduct police tasks and use police authority, in order to safeguard and protect human rights.

SLOVENIA

Commission for the Prevention of Corruption of the Republic of Slovenia (CPC)

(Komisija za spreprevenje korupcije)

The Commission for the Prevention of Corruption of the Republic of Slovenia (CPC) is an independent state body like the Human Rights Ombudsman, Information Commissioner or the Court of Audit. While Slovenia has an eight-year history of specialised anti-corruption bodies, the current CPC has been established with the adoption of the Integrity and prevention of corruption Act (ZJIKP) of 2010 (with later amendments) and fulfils the requirement of an independent anti-corruption body as required by the UN Convention against Corruption (UNCAC).

The CPC has a wide mandate in the field of preventing and investigating corruption, breaches of ethics and integrity of public
Although part of the public sector, the CPC is not subordinate to any other state institution or ministry and does not receive direct instructions from the executive or the legislature. The CPC is not part of the law enforcement or prosecution system of Slovenia and its employees do not have typical police powers. They do, however, have broad legal powers to access and subpoena financial and other documents (notwithstanding the confidentiality level), question public servants and officials, conduct administrative investigations and proceedings and instruct different law enforcement bodies to gather additional information and evidence within the limits of their authority. The CPC can also issue fines for different violations (sanctions can be appealed to the Court).

The CPC makes decisions as a collegial body. Substantive decisions of the CPC (ruling on corruption, conflict of interest, violations of lobbying regulations, etc.) are subject to judicial review of the Administrative Court. Under the ZIntPK act, the CPC must be the subject to periodic external audit, the reports of which are submitted to the Parliament and the President and are publicly available. The CPC is also required to present its yearly reports to the Parliament.

To strengthen its independence, the law provides a special procedure for the appointment and dismissal of the leadership of the CPC. A Chief Commissioner and two deputies are appointed by the President of the Republic of Slovenia following an open recruitment procedure and nomination by a special selection board. The Chief Commissioners’ term of office is six years, the deputies’ five. They can serve up to two terms in office.

The budget of the CPC is determined yearly by the Parliament and the CPC is autonomous in allocating and organising its financial and human resources and priorities within the budget.

The CPC is organized as appropriate to its jurisdiction and tasks, which are preventive and regulatory/investigative. It follows a two-pillar approach. The first pillar (Investigation and Oversight Bureau) has an eight-year history of specialised anti-corruption bodies and it collects and monitors the declaration of assets of high ranking public officials, investigates cases of corruption, conflict of interest, violations of lobbying regulations and other violations under the jurisdiction of the CPC. The second pillar - Center for prevention and integrity plans, analysis and identification of corruption risks and factors, cooperating with civil society, academic and research institutions, etc. The Secretariat is responsible for the systemic development of the doctrine of anti-corruption and ethics of the public sector, undertakes analysis and research on corruption with the use of information technologies, carries out anti-corruption screening of legislation, is responsible for international activities of the CPC and public relations as well as performing administrative, personnel, logistical and financial functions for the CPC.

The predecessor of the CPC was the Government’s Office for the Prevention of Corruption, established in 2002 on the recommendation of GRECO. In 2004, the Parliament passed the Prevention of the Corruption Act (ZPKor) and the Office was replaced with the Commission for the Prevention of Corruption as an independent state body (appointed by and accountable to the Parliament) with a number of corruption-preventive tasks. On the 5th of June 2010, the ZIntPK act was adopted, while old act ZPKor expired. The ZIntPK retained the name of the CPC, but significantly expanded its mandate, functions and powers. It also strengthened its independence and introduced additional safeguards and objectivity in the procedure for the appointment and dismissal of its leadership. Most importantly, it expanded some of the investigative and sanctioning powers of the CPC and made it not only the national focal point for the prevention of corruption, but also for lobbying oversight, whistle-blower protection, the integrity of the public sector, and expanded its reach beyond the public into the private and business sector. The amendments to the Act adopted in June 2011 further strengthened the powers of the CPC to subpoena financial documents for the public and private sector and to hold accountable magistrates, officials, public servants, management and boards of public enterprises for corruption, conflict of interest or breach of ethics.

The police in Slovenia are responsible for the investigation of all corruption offences. Police investigations are generally conducted under the supervision and direction of state prosecutors. In total there are about 7,971 police officers nationwide, with the majority working in general policing roles throughout the country. The state level General Police Directorate based in Ljubljana is headed by the Director General of the Police, who is responsible to the Minister of the Interior.

Within this central structure, there is the Criminal Investigation Police Directorate with an Economic Crime Section that incorporates a special department dedicated to the investigation of corruption offences. This Anti-Corruption Department was established in 2006, and consists of five posts. At the regional level, there are 11 Police Directorates all of which have a Criminal Investigation Section and an Economic Crime Department. Each of the Economic Crime Departments includes a group of police officers that have a specialized role in the fight against corruption, consisting of a total of 25 posts.

The Police Act (1998) gives the police greater independence in their work, while also determining the main role of the Ministry of the Interior on the development, guidance and supervision of the police. These functions are performed by the Police and Security Directorate with the following internal organizational units:

- Police Guidance Sector: Police guidance includes the preparation of guidelines that the Ministry of the Interior gives to the police for drawing up their midterm and annual plans of development and work as well as guidelines for the performance of particular tasks of police work.
- Police Supervision Sector: The Directorate supervises all areas of policing and is particularly concerned with the implementation of police powers, especially from the point of view of the protection of human rights and fundamental freedoms.
- Complaints Section: its function is to process complaints lodged by individuals who feel their rights and freedoms were violated by a police officer’s action or lack of action, and to supervise the processing of complaints which fall under the competence of the police in the conciliatory procedure.
- Classified Information Section: the section conducts the security verification of candidates and prepares proposals for granting permission to gain access to classified information. It also performs other expert duties which deal with the determination and protection of classified information.
- Defence and Security Planning Section: Apart from the preparation of systematic solutions for operation in states of emergency or war and in the field of protection and rescue, this section prepares and carries out a defence plan and coordinates and supervises the work and competencies of the organizational units in this field.

The Directorate is provided with supervisory, inspection and recommendation/consultation powers. It was set up in 1999. At present its staff consists of 41 persons.

Swedish National Police Board (NPB)

The National Police Board is, in accordance with the Police Act, the central administrative authority for the police organization and also the national police monitoring and inspection agency.

In the Police Act it is stated that the National Police Board supervises all the police forces in the country. Under a special ordinance for the National Police Board, the Board has formed a special unit – the Division for Inspections – which reports directly to the National Police Commissioner. The Division for Inspections does not handle complaints against individual police officers. In Sweden the slightest accusation against a police officer will go directly to the prosecutor for further investigations.

The Division for Inspections’ supervision is focusing on legal questions and the lawfulness of different police activities and police services, with focus on justice and violation of a person’s rights, especially in situations when the police takes someone into custody. The Division for Inspections rather checks the police agencies than the individual police officers. The Division for Inspections has the competence for cases in relation to service regulations and for drafting proposals for structural improvements. Therefore the Division for Inspections is provided with supervisory and inspection powers.

UKRAINE

The National Anti-Corruption Bureau of Ukraine (NABU)

The National Anti-Corruption Bureau of Ukraine is a state law enforcement body charged with prevention, discovery, termination, investigation and solving corruption-related offences within its investigative jurisdiction, and preventing new offences.

The task of the National Bureau is countering criminal corruption-related offences that are committed by high-ranking officials authorized to exercise functions of the state or local self-government and that constitute a threat to the national security.

The main goal of the NABU is to prevent, expose, stop, investigate and solve corruption-related offences committed by high officials, and averting new ones and is based on the following values:

- conducts pre-trial investigation of criminal offenses referred by law to its investigative jurisdiction, and conduct pre-trial investigation of other criminal offenses in cases stipulated by laws.

The NABU Detectives conduct pre-trial investigations into allegations of criminal corruption offences under the corresponding articles of the Criminal Code of Ukraine, if crimes are committed by high level officials or if the value of a crime exceeds the living wage for employable person established by law at the time of the crime by 500 times or more.

UNITED KINGDOM

Her Majesty’s Inspectorate of Constabulary (HMIC)

The core tasks of the department are as follows:

- Inspection of police forces
- Giving advice to the Home Office, police forces and police authorities

It has statutory powers to inspect and make recommendations. The department has competence for quality checking processes, cases relating to disciplinary matters and for making proposals for operational and structural improvements. Although independent of the Home Office, HMIC works substantially to advise and support the Home Secretary.

HMIC’s core purpose is to promote the efficiency and effectiveness of police forces in England, Wales and Northern Ireland through inspection. HM Chief Inspector of Constabulary is the senior policing advisor to the Home Secretary. Four HM Inspectors (ex Police Chief Constables) lead regionally-based teams of seconded police officers carrying out inspection of forces. Two non-police HM Inspectors concentrate on specialist areas of training and police reform.

A further team of specialist staff officers, led by two Assistant Inspectors, provide advice and support in areas such as professional standards, performance management, ICT, crime investigation and forensic science.

In addition to individual force inspections, HMIC carries out thematic inspections, visiting several forces to review particular issues, such as police use of firearms or workforce modernization. HMIC works with other inspectorates in joint inspections (especially on cross-cutting criminal justice issues).

HMIC was set up in 1856. At the moment the department employs 130 people. Its budget is allocated by the Home Office but there are some avenues for direct income generation, including providing inspection advice to overseas police forces.

Independent Police Complaints Commission (IPCC)

Launched on 1 April 2004 and taking its power from the Police Reform Act 2002, the Independent Police Complaints Commission (IPCC) has responsibility for oversight of the police complaints system in England and Wales and has competency for handling complaints, allegations of misconduct and criminal allegations against police officers and police staff.

In 2008 the IPCC had a total of 480 staff operating from sites in London, Coventry, Cardiff, Manchester and Wakefield, including 120 independent investigators who have the powers of police constables when involved in independent investigations.

Under the current system complaints can be made against the following police personnel:

- police officers of any rank
- police staff including Community Support Officers and Traffic Wardens
- special constables
- contracted out staff designated under section 39 of Police Reform Act 2002
A person can make a complaint if:

- police misconduct was directed at them
- they were adversely affected by police misconduct not directed at them
- they witnessed police misconduct
- they are acting on behalf of anyone falling into any of the above categories

Complaints about operational policing policies or operational management decisions are outside the remit of the IPCC where there is no issue of misconduct. These issues should be directed to the appropriate police authority or Chief Constable.

Referal criteria govern the referral of matters to the IPCC. In 2007/08, 2208 matters were referred to the IPCC, including:

- statutory referrals - in cases of all deaths or serious injuries resulting from police contact
- mandatory referrals - for cases of serious assault, criminal behaviour, cases aggravated by serious corruption
- voluntary referrals - where there is serious concern of impact on public confidence
- complaints relating to use of anti-terrorism legislation

Anti Corruption Unit, National Crime Agency (NCA)

N/A

Office of the Police Ombudsman of Northern Ireland

The PCCS role is to review how a police force, police authority or policing agency has handled a complaint about the police - the PCCS do not investigate the complaint itself. A police force, police authority or policing agency can ask the PCCS to review how they have handled a complaint about the police. The PCCS cannot review complaints where a member of the public suggest that the police force, police authority or policing agency has acted illegally – the PCCS refer criminal allegations to the Crown Office Procurator Fiscal Service to consider.

At the conclusion of a case handling review the commissioner may recommend that a police force, police authority or policing agency makes changes to its policies or procedures so that a problem is less likely to happen again. The Commissioner wishes to ensure that policing bodies learn from complaints to improve their practices, policies and processes, and show that they are aware of the changing complaints environment.

The commissioner can also tell a police force, police authority or policing agency to reconsider a complaint. He can also tell another police force, police authority or policing agency to reconsider it. In some circumstances the commissioner may decide to supervise the person reconsidering the complaint.

When the PCCS finish a review the commissioner communicates his final conclusions and reasons. He will also publish his report, suitably anonymised, on the PCCS website www.pcc-scotland.org.

The PCCS funding is decided by Scottish Ministers and paid through the Justice Department of the Scottish Government. The PCCS publish audited annual accounts for each financial year.

Police Complaints Commissioner for Scotland

Mr Jim Martin became the first Police Complaints Commissioner for Scotland (PCCS) in January 2007 taking up his powers in April that year for a period of three years. Mr Martin does not have any previous connections with the police.

If a member of the public is not happy with the way a police force, police authority or policing agency has dealt with their complaint, the commissioner and his office may review how that police force or organisation has handled it. The service is free and independent.

The PCCS can review how complaints about the behaviour of an individual police officer or staff member have been handled, as well as the quality of a service a police force, police authority or policing agency has given. This includes:

- the eight Scottish police forces;
- eight police authorities (one for each police force, which are responsible for providing resources to police forces and investigating complaints against senior police officers); and
- eight policing organisations (the Scottish Police Services Authority, the Scottish Crime and Drug Enforcement Agency, the UK Borders Agency, British Transport Police, Civil Nuclear Constabulary, HM Revenue & Customs, the Ministry of Defence Police, and the Serious Organised Crime Agency).

A member of the public can ask for a review of how their complaint was handled if they:

- have had their complaint considered by a police force, police authority or policing agency;
- were badly affected by something that led to a formal complaint about a police force, police authority or policing agency; or
- witnessed something that led to a formal complaint about a police force, police authority or policing agency.

OLAF

European Anti-Fraud Office

The mission of the European Anti-Fraud Office (OLAF) is threefold:

- it protects the financial interests of the European Union (EU) by investigating fraud, corruption and any other illegal activities;
- it detects and investigates serious matters relating to the discharge of professional duties by members and staff of the EU institutions and bodies that could result in disciplinary or criminal proceedings;
- it supports the EU institutions, in particular the European Commission, in the development and implementation of anti-fraud legislation and policies.

While it has an independent status for the investigative function, OLAF is also part of the European Commission, where it has some budgetary and administrative autonomy.

OLAF is empowered to conduct in full independence:

- internal investigations, i.e. inside any European institution or body funded by the EU budget;
- external investigations, i.e. at national level, wherever the EU budget is at stake. For this purpose, OLAF may conduct on-the-spot checks and inspections on the premises of economic operators, in close cooperation with the competent Member State and third-country authorities.

OLAF is receiving an increasing quantity of information about possible frauds and irregularities, from a wide range of sources. In most cases this information results from controls by those responsible for managing EU funds within the Institutions or in the Member States. All allegations received by OLAF undergo an initial selection process to determine whether the allegation falls within the remit of the Office and meets the criteria for opening an investigation.

When a case is opened, it is classified under one of the following two categories:

- Investigations: Internal investigations are administrative investigations within the European Union institutions and bodies for the purpose of detecting fraud, corruption, and any other illegal activity affecting the financial interests of the European Communities, including serious matters relating to the discharge of professional duties. That could result in disciplinary or criminal proceeding. External investigations are administrative investigations outside the European Union institutions and bodies for the purpose of detecting by natural or legal persons.
- Coordination cases: OLAF contributes to investigations carried out by national authorities or other Community departments by facilitating the gathering and exchange of information and contacts.

Vienna Declaration 2004

The Heads and key representatives of the national Police Monitoring and Inspection Bodies as well as the Heads and key representatives of the Anti-Corruption Agencies of the EU Member States met in Vienna on 24-26 November 2004 for their fourth annual professional gathering.

The conference, in formulating this declaration, firstly must acknowledge that the national representatives present have varying levels of responsibility for the creation and development of anti-corruption policies. In this regard it is accepted that in particular, the Police Monitoring and Inspection Bodies’ national remit may not extend to include various aspects of national and international anti-corruption policy.

In accordance with the policies and legislation of the Member States and the principles of the United Nations Convention against Corruption as well as the relevant European Conventions as there are both the Civil Law Convention against Corruption and the Criminal Law Convention against Corruption of the Council of Europe, the Heads and key representatives of the national Police Monitoring and Inspection Bodies as well as the Heads and key representatives of the Anti-Corruption Agencies with specific responsibilities under national and international anti-corruption policies, are conscious of the seriousness of the problems and threats posed by corruption, which they perceive as a social disease, to the stability and security of societies, underpinning the institutions and values of democracy, ethical values and justice and jeopardizing sustainable development and the rule of law. Therefore they are convinced that good relations between Police Monitoring and Inspection Bodies as well as the Anti-Corruption Agencies and the civil society are indispensable for a successful fight against corruption.

The Heads and key representatives of the national Police Monitoring and Inspection Bodies as well as the Heads and key representatives of the Anti-Corruption Agencies also emphasize the links between corruption and other forms of crime, especially organized crime and economic crime, as these forms of crime make use of corruption as an instrument to facilitate their illegal activities. The Heads and key representatives of the national Police Monitoring and Inspection Bodies as well as the Heads and key representatives of the Anti-Corruption Agencies also underlie that corruption is a transnational challenge that affects all societies and economies, making increased international cooperation to prevent and control it a key prerequisite.

The Heads and key representatives of the national Police Monitoring and Inspection Bodies as well as the Heads and key representatives of the Anti-Corruption Agencies agree that law enforcement agencies are at the forefront of this struggle and hence must themselves meet the highest standards of subordination to and compliance with the principles of law, justice, social responsibility and ethics.

Furthermore, the Heads and key representatives of the national Police Monitoring and Inspection Bodies as well as the Heads and key representatives of the Anti-Corruption Agencies acknowledge that corruption can successfully be fought only when seen in the wider perspective of its manifestations in both the public and private sectors.

The Heads and key representatives of the national Police Monitoring and Inspection Bodies as well as the Heads and key representatives of the Anti-Corruption Agencies emphasize the significance of transparency as a key means of fighting corruption. They also stress the importance of a broad approach to fighting corruption, such as, for example, the commonly accepted three-pillar approach of prevention – education – repression. By effective operational cooperation, promotion of opportunities, joint working, sharing of good practices and development of high professional standards, the Heads and key representatives of the national Police Monitoring and Inspection Bodies as well as the Heads and key representatives of the Anti-Corruption Agencies aim to improve the fight against all types of corruption, in particular corruption and any (criminal) misbehaviour in the law enforcement agencies.

In summarizing the results of this conference, the Heads and key representatives of the national Police Monitoring and Inspection Bodies as well as the Heads and key representatives of the Anti-Corruption Agencies consent to the following objectives and will work together through the following initiatives:

1. The Heads and key representatives of the Police Monitoring and Inspection Bodies as well as the Heads and key representatives of the Anti-Corruption Agencies welcome the participation of the relevant units from the new Member States and agree that the Heads and key representatives of all the national Police Monitoring and Inspection Bodies as well as the Heads and key representatives of the Anti-Corruption Agencies of the 25 Member States should continue to convene at least once a year for a regular professional meeting.

2. The UN Convention against Corruption signed in December 2003 in Mexico will have an important impact on the fight against corruption. From the professional perspective it is therefore desirable that the Convention enter into force as soon as possible.

3. In the light of the UN Convention and with regard to the increasing importance of the fight against corruption, the Heads and key representatives of the Police Monitoring and Inspection Bodies as well as the Heads and key representatives of the Anti-Corruption Agencies welcome anti-corruption initiatives especially the measures that will be taken under the Hague programme.

4. The Heads and key representatives of the Police Monitoring and Inspection Bodies as well as the Heads and key representatives of the Anti-Corruption Agencies would welcome the idea of a European Anti-Corruption Network (EACN) based upon the existing structures and would also welcome appropriate steps in this direction by incoming Presidencies of the European Union.

5. A free and independent press and media are considered as major and indispensable means of fighting corruption in democratic societies. However, the Heads and key representatives of the Police Monitoring and Inspection Bodies as well as the Heads and key representatives of the Anti-Corruption Agencies also emphasize the responsibility of the media for unbiased coverage of such cases. (e.g. responsibility des médias lorsqu’il s’agit d’assurer la couverture de tels faits).

6. The meetings of the Heads and key representatives of the national Police Monitoring and Inspection Bodies as well as the Heads and key representatives of the Anti-Corruption Agencies initiated by the Belgian EU Presidency in 2001 today permit enhanced cooperation in the fight against corruption, especially corruption and any (criminal) misbehaviour in the police forces and law enforcement agencies.

7. Guided by the will to further strengthen the cooperation between their units, the Heads and key representatives of the Police Monitoring and Inspection Bodies as well as the Heads and key representatives of the Anti-Corruption Agencies fully support the idea of further enhancing their cooperation by various practical measures.

8. These may include, on a voluntary basis and subject to national legislation, the following:
The objectives and goals of EPAC are of an operational nature only and may include:

- establishing, maintaining, and developing contacts between specialised authorities;
